

ADDITIONAL COURSE LEVEL OUTCOME STATEMENTS

Communication Studies Course

All students completing the course will:

1. Possess the ability to access, analyze, evaluate, and communicate information in a variety of contexts.
2. Have acquired competence in reflective construction and analysis of argument and discourse intended to influence beliefs, attitudes, values, and practices.
3. Understand the role of media and other communication technologies in enabling, facilitating, and challenging the social constructions of cultural understandings, ideologies, and values.
4. Be able to develop, conduct, evaluate, and report communication research.
5. Have acquired competence as oral communicators and effective listeners in a variety of contexts.
6. Be able to communicate effectively in a culturally diverse world.
7. Have an awareness of the professional ethical standards involved in communication.

Dance Course

All students completing the course will:

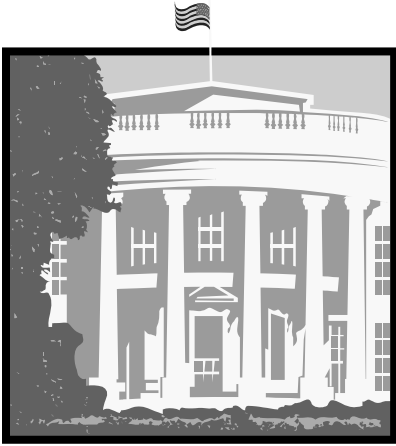

1. Demonstrate proficiency in a variety of dance styles, including ballet, modern dance, jazz, and tap dance.
2. Demonstrate a working knowledge of choreography and will be able to create a dance work.
3. Demonstrate a working knowledge of production techniques, including technical theatre, management, and costuming.
4. Demonstrate an understanding and appreciation for the principal historical, theoretical, and critical approaches to dance as a performing art.
5. Demonstrate an understanding and appreciation for dance as a multicultural expression.
6. Demonstrate an understanding and appreciation for dance education in the private and public sectors.

English Course

All students completing the course will:

1. Analyze and interpret the texts of others as well as their own, recognize the contexts in which they are written, and understand the ways in which texts and contexts interact.
2. Write coherent, organized, well-developed, and substantive texts that follow the conventions of standard written English.
3. Locate, evaluate, and cite primary source material, literary criticism, theory, and other scholarly texts relevant to the profession.

Political Science Course

All students completing the course will:

1. Improve their knowledge and understanding of the scientific method, technological applications, and basic research techniques and approaches used by political scientists, including qualitative and quantitative methods, the comparative method, experimental design and survey research.
2. Improve their knowledge and understanding of the different types of governmental and political structures, institutions, processes, and perspectives that exist in the world today and that existed in the past.
3. Improve their ability to critically analyze and evaluate the merit of ideas and arguments, to reason and think logically, and to express their views—in both oral and written form—using concise, coherent and grammatically correct prose.
4. Improve their knowledge and understanding of how civic engagement and political participation are important components to successful democratic government.